Lt. Col. Gerald G. Watson who is in charge of the disposal project, refused to say at a press briefing how much and what types of material would be destroyed or what types of weapons were involved. He claimed that this information was classified, pointing out that the Army would continue to do research into defenses against germ warfare agents and thus, did not wish to disclose too much about them.

It is generally known, however, that diseases caused by these agents include anthrax. botulism, tularemia and encephalitis. A variety of small bombs, artillery shells, grenades and hand-held weapons have and hand-held weapons have been developed to carry them. But Pentagon officials say that a National Security Council study last year cast considerable; doubt on the reliability and usefulness of these weapons and on the need for any major war deterrent other than the U.S. nuclear arsenal.

President Nixon renounced use of biological weapons—liva micro-organisms—for offensive or retaliatory purposes by this country on Nov. 25, 1969, and expanded that ban to include toxins-dead but poisonous bacteria products in February of

All-Day Meeting On Basques' Fate

By Anatole Shub and Miguel Acoca

MADRID, Dec. 18 (WP)...Generalissimo Francisco Franco's cabinet met in all-day session today amid reports that the Spanish political crisis was moving toward a climax.

The meeting appeared to be concerned with two principal is-sues: the fate of the 16 Basque nationalists tried in Burgos last week and a political report to be delivered Monday to the Cortes (parliament) by Gen Franco's chief deputy, Adm. Luis Carrero

Although cabinet meetings here normally end shortly after noon, today's session was continuing well after nightfall, and informed sources indicated that a serious debate was in progress.

There was still no word from Burgos on when the five military judges, who have been considering the Basque nationalist case since Dec. 9 ,would announce the sen-tences. The death penalty has been asked for six of the defendants, and officials here concede that the government is seriously divided as to whether death sen-tences, if pronounced, should be carried out.

As chief of state, Gen. Franco has the power to commute death sentences, and has in fact commuted several in recent years. Although international pressure for clemency has been strong, hard-line elements here fear that leniency might be interpreted by the regime's opponents as a show of

: Majority for Clemency .. While moderate officials reported a cabinet majority favoring clemency, observers were unable secertain the influence being exerted on the 78-year-old Gen. Franco by army leaders and by Adm, Carrero, who has for some chief of government. In a general climate of uncer tainty and contradictory rumors. Adm. Carrero was being assessed as a liberal by opposition leaders. and as a hardliner by moderate government supporters.

The controversy over the trial appears to be linked with broader issues dividing the Spanish estab lishment. The issues range from how to manage and time the ultimate succession to Gen. Franco to political and social reforms.

Adm. Carrero's planned speech to the Cortes had been in prepara tion before the Burgos trial. It had been expected not only to enhance the role of the Cortes but also to enable Adm. Carrero to make a wide-ranging government policy declaration. Shift of Balance

However, the domestic and international tensions generated by the Burgos trial have overshadowed other issues, and there has been mounting speculation that the balance within the regime is about to shift.

Since Octoger, 1969, the cabinat has been dominated by the so-called Opus Dei group of technocrats, who have favored moderate evolution at home and "Europeanization" abroad. However, the Opus Del has aroused strong opposition among hardline army leaders and other Franco supporters, who consider Opus policies too weak. Hardlina elements have argued that recent policies of liberalization have encouraged anti-Franco forces to challenge the foundations of the

BONN, Dec. 18 (NYT),-Byewitness reports of yesterday's bloody clashes between dem-onstrators and heavily armed security forces in Poland's northwestern cities of Szczecin and Slupsk were carried today by Scandinavian news media.

A Swedish radio reporter, Anders Thunberg, said he saw several thousand demonstrators, many of them waterfront workers, set fire to a district headquarters of the Communist party, as well as to buildings bousing the criminal police and the civil police, in Szczecin, formerly the German city of Stettin, near the German Jacob Andersen, a reporter for the Danish newspaper Ekstra-Bladet, telephoned Co-penhagen that in Slupsk, 145 miles east of Szczecin, there was a demonstration of sympathy last night for the Gdansk protesters of Monday and Tuesday. He said militiamen stormed the center of the city of 53,000 and clubbed down everyone in their path.

A third Scandinavian newsman, Pavel Utzon Buch, sent Copenhagen's tabloid BT a cable from Gdynia, saying he had seen an armored column move against a large crowd there on Wednesday. The armored force fired into the throng with light weapons, he

Mr. Thunberg's report from Szczerin was the most detailed. He telephoned it to Stockholm this morning from the Baltic ferry that he boarded last night on the Pomeranian coast. As translated by the West German news agency. DPA, he reported:

"It happened on the street right in front of the burning party headquarters in Szczecin. Tanks moved against the population to give them a shock. The people fied to avoid being run over. But a mother and her child were unable to make it. An oncoming tank struck both of them. A young soldler, standing nearby and watching, broke into tears."

The Swedish reporter said that the trouble began yester-day morning when Szczecin's shipyard workers got word of the clashes earlier in the week between security forces and their fellow workers in the Polish ports of Gdynia and Gdansk, the former German city of Danzig. He estimated that roughly one-third of Szczecin's 22,000 shipyard and dock workers stayed home. Many of those who showed up gathered to demonstrate instead of work. By noon 1,000 stood on the left bank of the Oder River, preparing to march on the party headquarters about five blocks away.

"Behind all this violent protest," he said, "could be traced a spontaneous demonstration that changed Szczecin from a very quiet city into a place (Continued on Page 2. Col. 7)

Two Soviet Units Based in Poland

LONDON, Dec. 18 (NYT),-Only two of the 31 divisions which the Soviet Union maintains in Eastern Europe under the Warsaw Pact are in Poland, according to the Institute for Strategic Studies. Each of the two combat-ready units has about 8,250 men and 325 medium tanks.

The largest Soviet force in Eastern Europe is in East Germany, where 20 divisions are stationed. There are four In Hungary and five in Czechoslovakia. No Russian naval units are known to be based in Today's ruling would seem to mean that any former Radio Free Europe employee who visits Czechoslovakia is liable to arrest and up to 10 years' imprisonment.

Mr. Eidlin was found by the court to have arranged a meeting between RFE employees and two Czechoslovak students in the spring of 1969. But Judge Miloslav Topinka ruled that accusations that he had tried to recruit the two students for Radio Free Europe had not been proved.

Mr. Eidlin, who addressed the court in fluent Czech throughout the trial, told the court that he was a student of European political affairs and had joined Radio Free Europe in April 1968 because of its archives, considered to be the best in the world on Communist affairs. He left RFE in November 1969. Mr. Eldlin admitted meeting two Czech students, Lubomir Janous and Jaroslav Safranek, in Nuremberg and Munich in 1969 but denied trying to recruit them for Radio Free Europe, Janous and Safranek, who appeared as itnesses today, also denied that attempts had been made to recruit them.

of Albany, who wrote the decision said that the record showed that Eastern Greyhound employs a number of Moslems and there was no showing that the decision not to employ Mr. Ibrahim "was in fact actuated by discrimination against creed."

The issue, thus, is very narrow. Judge Bergan said: "Whether an employer must accommodate his general pattern of employment to the special requirements of each individual's religion."

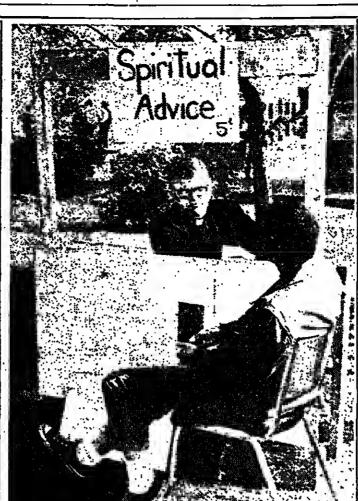

The failure to make this kind of accommodation, which could as-sume many variations, is not in itself, or in the absence of actual discrimination based on creed, a violation of the human rights law Judge Bergan argued.
In support of the holding, Judge

Bergan cited several precedents.

A Seventh Day Adventist who lost her joh because she would not work on Saturday, her sahbath, was awarded unemployment compensation because the discrimination was the state's in allowance of a public benefit. Also, in a Reynolds Metal Co. case decided by the U.S. Circuit Court, it was held that implementation of a labor agreement which sometimes called for work on Sunday was not religious discrimination even in respect to persons forbidden by their faith to work that day.

The moon buggy, powered with hatteries charged by the sun's rays, has already endured the bitter cold of one 14-day lunar night, and afterward seemed none the worse

The Bochum space observatory in West Germany estimated today that Lunokhod-1 would have to sit out another lunar night from Dec. 23 to Jan. 7. It is not known by Westerners how long the Russians will keep it maneuvering.

The vehicle is fitted with French-made reflectors which have been bouncing back laser beams to observatories in the Crimea and southern France to measure radio interference between earth and the moon. Lunokhod also samples the moon soil and maps the surface.

'Enormous' Casualties In Month-Long Battle

SAIGON, Dec. 18 (UPI) .- South Vietnamese and Cambodian troops today reopened Highway 7 in northeast Cambodia after a month of heavy fighting that caused "enermous" casualties to the poorly equipped Cambodian Army.

In Saigon, the U.S. Command reported the loss of five American aircraft and four airmen.

The U.S. and South Vietnames Commands announced they will observe 24-hour cease-fires over Christmas and New Year's hut said nothing about a truce for the Tet holiday at the end of January. The Viet Cong announced three-dey cease-fires for the first two holidays and four days for Tet. Says TFX Was

The reopening of Highway 7 means that food and ammunition can be carried by road to Kompong Cham, a provincial capital of 50,000 persons regarded as one of the anchors of Premier Lon Not's defense complex.

Field commanders were unable to estimate casualties in the fighting which hegan Nov. 8, but said they feared they had lost more than 200 wounded and "almost as many dead." They said they suffered enormous" casualties when the Cambodians fought off human wave assaults by the North Viet-namese and Cambodian guerrillas. The U.S. Command in Saigon reported that a collision in flight

Under the Cathedral: Roman Cologne

By Betty Falkenberg

COLOGNE—If it isn't a skyscraper going up, it's a parking lot or subway going down.
Ever since Cologne was hit by the underground building epidemic now rampant in Germany, pedestrians strolling around that city's august cathedral have been getting an unusual eyeful.
A gigantic excavation project, started a year and a half ago
for a parking lot and subway, upturned, layer for layer, what may modestly be called a microcosm of Western civilization.

The earliest finds, and those isast anticipated in this area, are Neolithic tools and vessels dating back to 3000 B.C. The greatest bulk, however, and the most significant, are from Roman times, and, taken together, they supply some missing links in the history of Cologne.

Passing by, any time of day, one could see archaeologists and students scrambling around on their bands and knees; every now and then, a little hoy with big dreams would emerge from the depths with the dust of ages clinging to his pants, clutching some tiny fragment of a wall or mosaic he had found and that the field-worker in charge had said he could keep.

From the start, the board-walks around the cathedral were a peepers' paradise. Not only could one see what was actually going on, but chronological charts and blown-up photos made hy hyper-sensitive cameras were posted on site, showing the walls, hypocausts and mosaics in their totality. A foreigner might well be impressed by the educational zeal behind such an endeavor which reached a population that might otherwise never ever have looked at a Roman vase.

An Exhibition

Now that the labor of love is nearly completed, the results, beautifully arranged, have been put on view to the public at the Kunsthalle (the "Rom am Dom" exhibition continues until mid-February).

February).

The finds have stirred up a lot of speculation and laid a lot of ghosts. Among the more interesting facts that have come to light are that Cologne was founded on the site of a double legionary camp. One of these legions, the 19th, was surely posted in Cologne before it took part in the Battle of the Teutoburger Woods (A.D. 9). The network of streets laid down at this time was to provide the core of the later Roman city, Colonia Claudia Agrippinensis.

For a long time it was believed that the Meroringian
Age brought disaster to Cologne, that swine were brought in to graze, and that the city as such ceased to be. On the contrary, it now seems that Cologne continued to flourish as a city of culture, and that through all the upheavals of history it maintained its cosmopolitan, indeed lte Roman, character.

The historical implications of the excavations may be of less interest to the layman than the objects themselves and the colorful picture they provide of Roman life over the centuries. Every artifact, be it crude or magnificent, has a tale to tell. There is even a riddle, pencilled on slate in horrendously corrupt Latin,

From existing remains It was possible to reconstruct the architectural layout of nearly the whole town during the first and second centuries A.D. The overall plan and the houses themselves turn out to be much like those found in Pompeii and Herculaneum. But the harsher

'Oldest' Fossils Reported Found In Indian Hills

NEW DELHI, Dec. 18 (UPI).

Fossils of invertebrates that may be 700 tallion to 800 million years old have been found in the Aravali Hills in Haryana state, near Delhi, the National Herald reported today.

According to the officials of the Geological Survey of India, the "fossils are considered to he the oldest so far found anywhere in the world." The invertebrate fossils up to 3.5 millimeters in diameter are helieved to be older than the iron ore deposits recently found at the climate forced concessions. More, and more elaborate beating systems were developed, and in the consequent remodeling, larger units gave way to small.

For sheer looking pleasure, nothing in this exhibit can top the taunting rests of murals found in the luxurious villas replete with little animals, some coy, some ferocious, some simply dazed, and frozen so for all time, or strange fragments of Bacchanalian feasts, griffins and other fabulous creatures. What are they doing up there? Whatever it is, they are certainly having a good time at it, and where the pieces are missing, as in the case of the old sybarite whose face was ripped into by earlier diggings (for sewerage!), the imagination gladly fills in.

From earliest times, the Roman etreets were lined with arcades, and water from the Fifel mountains was brought by elaborate pipes into the houses. Not far off from the shops and huzz of the city stood a monument to the emperor. One of the most astonishing recent discoveries was a tablet bearing a fully legible inscription with the name of Nero. The tablet prohably accompanied a colossal statue. Of the alleged statue itself, nothing remains. It is odd that the tablet survived intact when one remembers that after his death Nero's name was eradicated from all monuments. Most likely the statue was destroyed, and the tablet simply removed. A hust of cult objects are on exhibition, providing a kaleidoscopic view of the days when the Roman pantheon, local fertility gods, the Christian Jesus, and Mithras were worshiped and tolerated, side by side. Some of the religious objects have marvelous and etrange shapes, such as the etona head of Pan, looking inscrutable and stern, or the relief, also in stone, of the birth of the sun god Mithras, small yet mighty.

While no mosaic was found to match the superb quality of the famous second-century. Dionysus mosaic in Cologne, some were found in what now turns out to be a neighboring house: one, an attractive swastika-in-reverse motif (viewed nervously by visitors) as well as one showing Mars and Venus (Mars is almost obliterated). In addition, there are beautiful bits of glass and vases, each shard a tome:

Stein Paintings in New York

By Grace Glueck

NEW YORK (NYT).—Gertrude Stein threw down her knife and fork at the dinner table when brother Leo announced he'd bought Picasso's 1905 nudelet, "Young Girl With a Basket of Flowers." "Now you've spoiled my appetite," she said, according to his later recollection. "I hated that picture with feet like a monkey's."

But Leo. who reportedly had paid $30 for the painting, left it with Gertrude when in 1914 he quit the Paris menage they shared with her friend. Alice B. Toklas. And in 1968, 22 years after Gertrude's death, the "Young Girl" and 46 other works by Fleasso and Juan Crissti'l left in her collection were bought for about $6 million by a group of trustees of the Museum of Modern Art. The buyere divided their haul by drawing lots, and Gertrude's aperioted maiden wound up in the possession of David Rockefeller, MOMA's board chairman. Pro-rating the $6 million, he got it for about $5,000 times the price that Leo paid.

Now the "Young Girl" is a star of "Four Americans in Paris: The Collections of Gertrude Stein and Her Family, opening tomorrow at the Museum of Modern Art. The show, consisting of Gertrude's pictures and nearly 200 other works ooce owned by the Steins—Gertrude, Leo, their brother Michael and his wife Sarah—pays tribute to these salty siblings and their evangelism in spreading the gospel of mod-

We didn't realize when Certrude's estate was purchased how many things had been owned by the Steins, or how widely dispersed they were," says Margareta Potter, associate curator in MOMA's department of painting and sculpture who is directing the show. "Even though we managed to round up about 225 works, there are more than 100 we know of that were unavailable for loan."

Gertrude herself sold several Picassos, for instance, when Leo departed; and in the '30s, fretting over the non-publication of her work, she issued it on her own with money from the sale of Picasso's "Woman With a Fan" to an American dealer. In 1921 Leo, who had

The Michael Steins went back home to San Francisco in 1935, and after Michael's death three years later, Sarah sold their magnificent Matisse collection piecemeal.

Alise Potter began her search last January by studying with a magnifying glass a series of photos of the Stein apartments that showed their art-plastered walls. Identifying each work she combed books for indications of its present whereahouts. A reproduction of Manet'e "Ball Scene," for in-

Five American Artists, A l'Archifleur. 26 Rue du Vert-Bois, Paris, to Jan. 5.

This little gallery is off the beaten track (near the Temple Métro stop) and was recently created by a group of young enthusiasts who took over a plumber's den and did all the necessary masonry themselves. The present exhibition includes drawings, collages, gouaches and olls by five young American women: Lieby Miedema, Lynn Sukenick, Nora Kersh, Bosiljka Raditsa and Peggy Smith. The works are in small format and abstract in style. Both Miedema and Radites have an eloquent graphic gift and an ability to convey interesting amhiguities of perspective. Smith's work is more expressionistic and raw in color constructions and Sukenick, who is primarily a poet, is represented by a batch of col-

Kruczek, Galerie Lambert, 14 Rue Saint-Louis-en-I'lle, Paris, to Jan. 9.

Polish artist Marian Kruczek encrusts all kinds of odds and ends into cement or plaster to produce little works that look like gingerbread men and occasionally larger and complex, wiry, insect-like creatures. The effect is rather whimsical and a bit untidy. There is no psychological uneasiness in the background, however, as is so often the case with works that use this sort of bric-a-brac.

Le Parc. Galerie Denise Rene. 124 Rue La Boétie, Paris, to

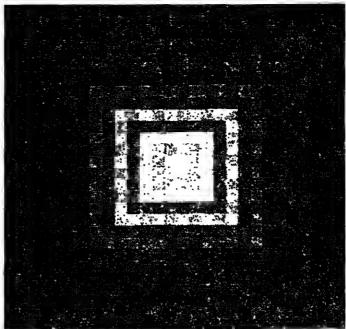

Using a chromatic scale of 14 colors he devised in 1959, Le Parc here presents compositions that are a systematic de-velopment of that scale, and superimpositions of various independent systems. Which all sounds very learned and dull. In fact, however, the end product is a collection of canvases that cheerfully tease the eye, explotting the endless permutations that the system allows. A familiar notion on the whole. Some large circular rainbows look like designs for beach um-

The monotypes of plants on window sills are made of a meandering, instinctucl line, which is fresh and should be explored further. Not just decorative, these paintings are gay and lovely too.

Protecting U.S. Investors

against losses of cash and securities in the event of brokerage house failures is now in conference, having been passed in different versions by both houses of Congress.

A floor amendment to the Senate bill reduced to $20,000 from $50,000 the amount of a customer's cash and securities that would be covered by insurance, to bring the figore into line with federal insurance presently given to depositors in banks and savings and loan associations. But the parallel is not a good one. Large numbers of stock market investors would have to accept inadequate protection of their cash and securities or would be compelled to split their accounts among two or more brokers. This would serve no useful purpose, and might hurt both investors and brokers.

Another amendment, proposed by Sen. Proxmire of Wisconsin, would nermit tha new insurance corporation to set standards for memhership, instead of requiring all brokers to be members as provided in the House bill. This would reduce the risks to the insurance corporation and help to warn investors away from dealing with "unsafe or unsound" brokers.

A third important amendment, sponsored by Sen. Brooke of Massachusetts, would require broker dealers to establish a reserve fund to protect investors' cash and to segregate investors' securities from securities owned by the brokerage firm. The aim of the amendment is to prevent brokers from endangering customers' cash and securities if the firm runs into financial trouble. However, the solvency

An important bill to insure investors of a great many brokers in this period of extreme stress could be endangered by denving them the use of cash belonging to their customers for loans to other customers with margin accounts. The simple fact is that a good many firms might be suddenly forced to the wall if denied this source of

The way to achieve the sound goal of the Brooke amendment is to give the Securities and Exchange Commission broad authority to prevent unsound uses by brokers of their customers' money. This authority is amply provided by the original House bill.

The problem of how to protect enstomers' cash and securities is a symptom of the more fundamental problem of the inadequate capital structure of a great many Wall Street brokerage houses. In the short run, this problem would be aggravated by denying firms the right to engage in what economists call "Intermediation"—that is, borrowing from some customers to lend to others. In the long run. Wali Street houses must be put on a far firmer capital base-by requirements that firms maintain sufficient amounts of liquid capital

The securities industry is undergoing a radical transformation. Stock brokers must become at least as safe and dependable for their customers as banks are for their depositors. Establishing a Securities Investor Protection Corporation will help to achieve that objective, but it must not be administered in a way that will compound the current financial crisis in Wall Street. THE NEW YORK TIMES.

Strike Retreat in Britain

The decision of the British electrical workers to call off their slowdown is an important symbolic victory for Prime Minister Heath and the new Conservative government. The Heath strategy to halt wage inflation depends heavily upon the government's setting a good example to private employers in its own dealings with unions in the nationalized industries.

After agreeing to some inflationary wage settlements, the government decided to draw the line with the electrical workers. The result was several days of partial brownouts and blackouts that reduced industrial output and raised the nation's blood pressure. After being cool to a fact-finding panel, the unions have now not only accepted such an inquiry but also tacitly conceded that the factfinders can take the general inflation into account in recommending a new wage bar-

One slowdown called off does not signal the prompt end of inflation. Angry showdowns and difficult negotiations probably lle ahead in other industrial disputes. But by facing down unions in a strategic position to carry on this particularly irritating form of industrial warfare, the government is in a much better position to cope with future difficulties.

The collapse of the electrical slowdown zays something about the social cohesiveness of the British people. There is a genuine sense of community which sooner or later makes itself felt even opon workers engaged in a bitter dispute and convinced that their wage claim is just. In the United States, a much more heterogenous and loosely connected society, the same show of government firmness and the same appeals to community solidarity do not always work.

Reliance on community sentiment and pressure have long enabled the British to conduct industrial relations with only the sketchiest legal framework. There has been nothing comparable to a National Labor Relations Board election to determine the bargaining agent, no code of collective bargaining practices and no enforceable contracts. This non-system worked because British trade union leaders were cautious. conservative types who could represent the Communist world is Prayda, workers for a lifetime and rarely called an official strike.

In recent years, however, two major unions have produced weak, radical leadershipradical in rhetoric and weak in deeds. The Polish Riots

The leaders in Warsaw should have fcw illusions about the seriousness of the recent disorders: They are reminded of those in Poznan in 1956, which also originated from a difficult economic situation but very soon took an anti-Communist and anti-Soviet turn. The Polish government at the time had to decide to accelerate the enforcement of measures of democratization and decoliectivization aimed at increasing the huying power which were called for by the liheral elements of the regime.

The riots in Poznan were a prejude to a large extent to what was called the peaceful revolution of October, 1956, and to Mr. Gomuika's return to power. Without wanting to dramatize, one must keep this precedent in mind and admit that the present disorders. though of a social nature, carry ferments of agitation of a nature to caose political stirrings of some magnitude. They are an unequivocal warning.

-From Le Figaro (Paris).

The latent debate within the Polish party is likely to be revived to the benefit of the new class of young leaders who have been denouncing for a long time the economic and technological lagging of their country.

The Gdansk events may be the beginning of a real political upheaval. There is every reason to believe that the economic and trade policy of "overture" [to the West] will be continued and strengthened. Is it not for of the Soviet people," why is there Poland one of the means of extricating a problem, unless perhaps the Soherself from her stagnation?

---Combat (Paris). * * *

The nprising by Danzig workers against the misguided economic policies of the Polish Communist bureancracy has thus far been brutally beaten down. Workers, housewives and students were tha weaker party in an unequal battle. The Warsaw government is still trying to veil the true causes and course of the Danzig tragedy, holding fast to the thesis that the revolt was inspired and set off by "rowdies and hooligans" instead of admitting that the uprising was initiated by the Danzig dock workers, the elite of Polish laborers.

An editorial in the party newspaper Trybuna Ludu concluded with words both ominous and pacifying, stating on the one hand that "there must be an end to anarchy" while admitting that the Danzig events "constitute a lesson to the entire party, the working class and workers everywhere."

MOSCOW.—The name of the most prestigious newspaper in which means "truth," and Pravda has published in the last few days a savage editorial against its Nobel Prize-winner, Alexander Solzhenitsyn, describing him as "a spiritual emigrant hostile to the whole life of the Soviet people." When an American reporter goes words at first seems incomprehensible. The editors are highly inatmosphere of the Western world. They are technically proficient in the production of a daily newspa-per here, and almost at the same time with its regional editions, all over this vast continental country, and they show genuine compassion for the suffering of individuals and nations, particularly within their own particular political em-

A Paradox

But the paradox remains: Why do they talk so confidently about the power and human truth they have discovered in the Communist system, and are yet so worried about the writings of what they call a little band of renegades pedding poisonous chetoric for whisky and cigarettes"?

No doubt Solzhenitsyn is a spiritual emigrant from the Communist system, with its flerce opposition to intellectual dissent, but if he is "hostile to the whole life viet people do not like their life

To be frank about it, a visitor here does not feel that the people are less happy about their lives than they have been at any time since the last war. Their patience is almost beyond understanding. One watches them in the new supermarkets, in the aspiring new skyscrapers along Kallinin Prosnekt, buying more and better food than they have had at any time in the last quarter century. They are better dressed, and shod, with the help of increased production and a new import program, and wherever there are things to sell, they seem to have money to buy. And there is obviously a growing middle class and even an official and artistic upper class here, which enjoys the pleasures of the theater and the concert hall and even the inxuries of Owning country property and passing it on to their chil-

Why Did Connally Accept?

Up From Texas By Joseph Kraft

knows that President Nixon named John Connally secretary of the Treasury to bolster a sagging administration. But why did the former Democratic governor of Texas accept? The answer suggests that the Connally appointment has an ultimate political weight only in certain conditions. It does not count all that much if, as seems likely, the Democratic nominee for President in 1972 is Sen. Edmund Mus-

At the outset it must be understood that Connally is one of the most able and effective men in American politics. He is a born leader, intelligent in the analysis of problems, sensitive to surroundings, full of poise and public presence, and with great force. He is also a local patriot, not to say Texas Firster. And he is not free of amhition, ever vanity.

As the mere leader of the Texas

Democrats, Connally was a man with a great future behind him. Set against the background of Houston oil and gas interests, he was too visibly a conservative to win a spot as President or even Vice-President on the Democratic ticket. He was also typed as a lineal descendant of Lyndon Johnson that symbol of supreme division among Democrats.

By coming into the Treasury now. Connally kicks free of these encumbrances. He achieves present power and future prospects.

The Republicans are already courting him like crazy. To them he is the man who can carry Texas in 1972 and save the White House. They are even saying that he will be able to put the Family Assistance Plan through Congress though it is not clear that he is much of a supporter of that pro-

Mark Lane's Book

Isn't David Douglas Duncan missing the point in his review of Mark Lane's book "Conversation with Americans" (Dec. 16)? Let's admit for the sake of argument that half atrocities in Vietnam with the soldiers interviewed are exaggerating or even lying (Duncan points out discrepancies in one of the interviews): the fact remains that certain things happening in Vietnam are mentioned by all of them with stokening regularity: prisoners are maimed and killed (throwing them out of helicopters is a favority tactic), prisoners and civilians are tortured (I will spare your readers description—let them read the book), women are raped, civilians, including children and tha aged, are massacred in cold blood, and the leitmotif is, "You can do anything you want." . Italy's GNP is expected to rise 8 percent against 6.5 percent this year. The commission anticipates a sharp rise in production and the creation of new jobs, but price and cost stability, essential for con-solidating the external balance, must be the first goal of economic planning, it said,

As for Belgium, the government should avoid easing its current restrictive policies too soon because of the application of the value added tax on Jan. 1, which would add to the upward pressure on prices. In Luxembourg, price and cost rises will continue, although both domestic and internal demand should slacken, the report said.

The Non-Members

The commission said it expects the U.S. GNP to rise by 3.5 percent, compared with a slight drop in 1970. The main impetus next year will probably be from household spending, due to the reform of direct taxation and a stabilization in the employment level.

How to start benefiting from investment management with as little as $5,000

CH-1211 Geneva 1, Switzerland.

If the money you have today is to grow in the future toward more income, or for education, travel, leisure, retirement, it must be kept working full time to achieve your goals. Yet you may find that you are actually losing ground due to inflation, taxes or lack of time for investment decisions. To help solve this problem, clients in 55 countries have turned to The Danforth Associates Investment Management Plan. It has, we believe, proved especially efficient in providing continuing capital growth supervision for portfolios of from $5,000 to $50,100 - on behalf of people who recognize and can share the risks and rewards of common slock investments. The cost is modest, as low as $100 per year. For a complimentary copy of a 42-page report describing

FIFTH BUSINESS

By Robertson Davies. Viking. 308 pp. $6.95 Reviewed by L. J. Davis

ROBERTSON DAVIES, the master of Massey College at the University of Toronto, is the author of six plays, seven books of criticism (three of them in collaboration with Tyrone Guthrie) three novels and innumerable magazine articles and newspaper columns. Despite the fact that he has achieved a certain eminence in his own country, his work is virtually unknown in America outside a small circle of devoted admirers. Let us hope that the publication here of his fourth novel, "Fifth Business," will finally redress the balance It is a mature, accomplished and altogether remarkable book, one of the best of this or any other season, and it simply cannot be ignored.

Written in the form of a candid personal memoir, it is the story of Dunstan "Corky" Ramsay, holder of the Victoria Cross, retired history master of a fashionable Canadian boys' school and superficially doddering and beloved old fool of popular fiction, whose real life has been a very strange one indeed. Beginning with a superb nostalgic evocation of life in a small Ontario village just after the turn of the century, the book evolves by almost imperceptible degrees into a profound fictional exploration of myth, illusion and the nature of sainthood, while at the same time never ceasing to be a firstrate novel. The curious title refers to those roles in classical opera "which, being neither Hero nor Heroine, Confident nor Villain, but which were nevertheless essential to bring about the Recognition or de nouement; [and] which were called the Fifth Business

In a manner of speaking that is the part assumed by Dunstan Ramsay in the lives of four of his friends, their fates inextricably joined by so trivial an incident as the throwing of a badly aimed snowball "at 5:58 o'clock p.m. on the 27th of De-cember, 1908." They are an oddly assorted lot: Boy Staunton, who threw it; Mrs. Amasa Dempster, whom he hit; Paul Dempster, her changeling son, who was born prematurely as a result of the blow; and Leola Cruikshank, the village beauty, whom Staunton grows up to marry, make rich and destroy. Ramsay does his best by them and tries to pick up the pieces when they fall, but he is, un-fortunately, a saint. And therefore he can really do nothing for them whatever, beyond assisting them on their way to their inescapable destiny in ways that are beyond his com-

Ranging across 60 years, three continents and two wars, embracing a multitude of characters both great and small, "Fifth Business" achieves a richness and depth that are exceptional in a modern novel and rare at any time. On its simplest and most obvious level it is a remarkably colorful tale of ambition, love and weird vengeance. At its deepest, if is a work of theological fiction that approaches Graham Greene-his predecessor, Alie Sherman, did in those pre-season weeks at Fairfield, Conn. But like all head coaches, Webster takes the proper security measures against any prying eyes in enemy hire.

There was a great commotion at Fairfield last August when an official of the Giants sighted not only movement in the trees bordering the practice field, but also the figure of a man, And the sun was reflecting the glint of what was ummistakably, a pair of field glasses. Aha! A spy.

Two big assistant coaches in filtrated the woodsy area with all the stealth big assistant coaches can muster and with a flanking movement, grabbed the intruder, binoculars and all. No meter reader this time. What they had selzed was a dedicated, genuine bird-watcher poised for recognition of the year's first brown thrasher or perhaps a precious bronzed grackle or maybap a wayward sulphur-crested cockatoo.

Not Convincing

Sid Gillman, the Chargers' general manager, is expected to call in Garrett soon and ask him to reconsider and play next year.

He won't, He has always had trouble convincing people.

The Chiefs did not take his talk of quitting seriously until this year. Back in 1966, he couldn't convince anyone he wasn't already committed to the Rams, so all the AFL teams passed on him in their draft until Kanas City took a chance.

NEW YORK, Dec. 18 (NYT).-Jimmy (The Greek) Snyder, the oddsmaker from Las Vegas, has made the Giants an even-money bet in Sunday's game against the Rams, although some bookmakers won't quote odds on the game. Some Jets were asked if they were rooting for the Giants. The two most antogonistic were Joe Namath, the injured quarterback, and Larry Grantham, the experienced line-backer who was a member of the original Titans a decade ago. -

"No," Namath answered. "I don't like the Giants, just like I don't like Oakland. I never want the Giants to win.

Secret SST Report

WASHINGTON.-President Nixon was asked at last week's press conference why be didn't release a topsecret report on the SST that the White House had commissioned. The question was asked because it is believed that the report was unfavorable to the SST.

The President replied he had no objection to the substance of the report being made public. Buchwald The problem that when reports are made for the President, they're supposed to be held in confidence. That's what Mr. Nixon

Max Lindbergh, a friend of mine who is an aviation consultant, believes he knows what is in the report.

"It has nothing to do with the environment." Max told me. "The report says the reason we shouldn't build the SST is that by the time it comes off the assembly line, there won't he any places left for Americans to go."

"I don't understand." I said. "If we start on the SST now, it will be ready by 1979. Most scientista agree the SST is not a practical plane to fly over land because of its sonic boom. Its only value would be in flying over water, from one continent to another in less than three hours. Therefore the success of the plane will be dependent on tourists, and there is some queation as to bow

Los Muchachos-A Boys' Circus From a Boys' Town

DARIS.-At a moment when Spain is much on people's I minds, a young group from Spain is arousing compassion and joy at Paris's Grand Palais. They are the Circo de los Muchachos the Boys' Circus) and they range in age from

The boys are skilled acrobats, horsemen, clowns, musicians and grips. They come from the Ciudad de los Muchachos, a boys' town in Orense in the province of Galicia founded by Father Jesus Silva, a young priest who wanted to help orphaned and destitute children.

The boys are trained to become anything from bakers to hwyers. That they should also be trained as circus performers may seem odd, but Father Silva is a member of Spain's famous Feijoo-Castilla circus family and was for some time the preferred confessor of circus folk. "For me, a circus act is the most heautiful prayer one man can make to God," he has said. A small, wiry figure in a black turtleneck sweater and black leather jacket. Pather Silva isn't much over five feet tall. The beatific expression on his face as be watches the spectacle is something to see.

Like the boys who are learning other trades, the circus students have ordinary academic coorses in the morning, then study their specialties in the afternoon. The circus teachers include professionals from Spain, Germany, Belgium, Italy and England, and some alumni have become professionals. Two of them are at this moment dazzling Miami.

To bring the Muchachos to Paris, patrons included the Frenci. Ministry of Cultural Affairs, the publisher Hachette and the evening newspaper France-Soir. All media have promised to give the boys a well-deserved boost and the Grand Palais, which hasn't housed a live spectacle since 1932, has been gorgeously redecorated with two fine rings and grandstands. The Ecole Militaire is stabling the boys' eight circus

The Circo de los Muchachos will be at the Grand Palais until Jan. 7 tickets may be bought at the box office or reserved by telephoning 720-12-401. They will go next to Luxembourg, Belgium, Holland and, in the spring, to Japan. They hope also during 1971 to appear in the United States and Latin

Their show has all the heartstopping feats, anticipatory drumrolls, blaring gaudiness, laughs and sawdust and tinsel of a cisssical circus. But it has an atmosphere of excitement and devotion that is all its own. There are Flying Angels, Jugglers Playing With Fire, Death-Defying Leaps and number-less Impossible Feats skillfully performed. The sight of an 11-year-old on a trapeze may be unnerving, but it is clear that be and every other boy is having the time of his life.

Father Silva, now 36, founded his boys' town in 1956. Although there are unfortunately no facilities for handicapped boys, anyone else who wants to join the community is accepted. There are at present about 1,000 boys (more will undoubtedly be picked up during the present tour) and a staff of about 30. The boys are of varying races, nationalities and backgrounds. "We never discuss their pasts, we make no difference between them. Father Silva loves children, he thinks they are the most important thing in the world," says Jesus Alaejos, a gentle 26-year-old who left his well-off family to work for the Cludad de los Muchachos. The aim of the community is for the boys to be independent and free. Run as a small republic, the Ciudad de los Muchachos bas its own orange and green flag, its own currency (ordinary pesetas are changed at a Ciudad bank run by a 17-year-old!, and its own stores ranging from a supermarket to a filling station, all run by boys. (Boys over the age of 14 who have been in the community for at least five of the town.) The town is mostly self-supporting, with a small sum from the government and insufficient private subsidies. It is boped that the circus tour and sales of Ciudad de los Muchachos-made handicrafts will fill the coffers to P more reassuring years spend one year practicing their trade for the benefit

The circus, which began in 1965, probably shows the results of Father Silva's ideas most dramatically. The boys are confident and efficient, strikingly manly and self-reliant for

"Father Silva wants to show that children can accomplish important things," says assistant Jesus Alaejos. "No one ever believes they can-mothers and fathers yes, but not children. You must believe in them. We want children to believe that they can do anything."
